Your Special Needs Co-Parenting Report

Prepared for Sam Parent · 10-principle framework

Overall rating: Safety-Sensitive Review Recommended

Your responses flagged one or more safety-sensitive items. Because of this, the recommendations in this report intentionally do not include joint meetings or direct communication until a qualified professional has assessed the situation with you. Please prioritise your safety and your child's safety.

Your strengths

- Understanding the Child

Your knowledge of your child's strengths, needs, triggers, and what helps them recover from stress.

- Educational Coordination

School participation, accommodations, IEP/504 involvement, and information sharing about school.

Priority focus areas

- Understanding the Child (Developing area)

Why it matters: You know a lot; a few areas of your child's world are still coming into focus.

First step: Ask one of your child's professionals for a plain-language summary of current recommendations.

- Educational Coordination (Developing area)

Why it matters: School coordination mostly works with occasional gaps.

First step: Ask the school to send communications to both parents; keep a shared school folder for the child.

- Healthcare Coordination (Developing area)

Why it matters: Healthcare coordination usually works, with some gaps.

First step: Confirm both parents are on file with the pediatrician and specialists; align on a refill responsibility.

- Daily-Care Consistency (Developing area)

Why it matters: Most routines in your home are consistent, some drift.

First step: Pick one anchor routine (bedtime) and keep it identical for 30 days.

Domain-by-domain detail

Domain 1: Understanding the Child

Rating: Developing area

Your knowledge of your child's strengths, needs, triggers, and what helps them recover from stress.

Findings

- You know a lot; a few areas of your child's world are still coming into focus.

Recommendations

- Ask one of your child's professionals for a plain-language summary of current recommendations.

Domain 2: Educational Coordination

Rating: Developing area

School participation, accommodations, IEP/504 involvement, and information sharing about school.

Findings

- School coordination mostly works with occasional gaps.

Recommendations

- Ask the school to send communications to both parents; keep a shared school folder for the child.

Domain 3: Healthcare Coordination

Rating: Developing area

Medical, mental-health, therapy, and medication management across both homes.

Findings

- Healthcare coordination usually works, with some gaps.

Recommendations

- Confirm both parents are on file with the pediatrician and specialists; align on a refill responsibility.

Domain 4: Daily-Care Consistency

Rating: Developing area

Whether your home offers stable, predictable, developmentally-appropriate daily care.

Findings

- Most routines in your home are consistent, some drift.

Recommendations

- Pick one anchor routine (bedtime) and keep it identical for 30 days.

Domain 5: Transition Support

Rating: Developing area

Exchanges, transportation, and how well your child adjusts between homes.

Findings

- Exchanges usually go smoothly with occasional friction.

Recommendations

- Standardise what travels between homes (laminated checklist on the bag).

Domain 6: Communication

Rating: Developing area

Timely, accurate, child-focused information sharing between homes.

Findings

- Communication is largely reliable with occasional gaps.

Recommendations

- Add a weekly 10-minute child-focused check-in with a fixed agenda.

Domain 7: Decision-Making

Rating: Developing area

How well parents make and resolve decisions about the child.

Findings

- Most decisions get made but the process is sometimes ad-hoc.

Recommendations

- Adopt a written decision-resolution ladder (share records ? professional input ? mediation).

Domain 8: Event Participation

Rating: Developing area

School events and extracurriculars - attendance, coordination, and child-first behaviour.

Findings

- Events mostly go smoothly.

Recommendations

- Keep a shared events calendar so surprises don't create friction.

Domain 9: Resource Coordination

Rating: Developing area

Financial, insurance, and service coordination that keeps care flowing.

Findings

- Resource coordination works but has some sticky points.

Recommendations

- Adopt a clear reimbursement + prior-consent procedure for shared expenses.

Domain 10: Safety & Communication Safety

Rating: Safety-sensitive concern

Screen for coercive control, harassment, protective-order concerns, and communication safety needs.

Findings

- Your responses indicate safety-sensitive concerns. Ordinary co-parenting recommendations may not be appropriate.

Recommendations

- Consider written-only communication through a parenting app.
- Explore school-based or third-party exchanges to minimise direct contact.
- Speak confidentially with an attorney or a domestic-violence advocate about protective options.
- Do not enter joint sessions or shared decision meetings until safety has been assessed by a qualified professional.

Recommended next steps

- Prioritise safety planning - see the Safety block below before adopting any joint-meeting recommendations.
- Ask one of your child's professionals for a plain-language summary of current recommendations.
- Ask the school to send communications to both parents; keep a shared school folder for the child.
- Confirm both parents are on file with the pediatrician and specialists; align on a refill responsibility.
- Pick one anchor routine (bedtime) and keep it identical for 30 days.

This report is an educational reflection tool from SA CoParents. It is not a diagnostic evaluation, custody evaluation, or legal advice. Findings are based on your self-assessment answers across the 10 special-needs co-parenting domains.