Your Special Needs Co-Parenting Report

Prepared for A. Sample Parent · 10-principle framework

Overall rating: Priority Focus Overall

Several domains need focused attention. Completing this assessment is itself a strong first step. Focus on the priority domains one at a time; small, consistent wins compound.

Your strengths

- Understanding the Child

Your knowledge of your child's strengths, needs, triggers, and what helps them recover from stress.

- Educational Coordination

School participation, accommodations, IEP/504 involvement, and information sharing about school.

Priority focus areas

- Transition Support (Priority for planning)

Why it matters: Transitions are a recurring source of stress.

First step: Move exchanges to a neutral or school-based location; add visual warnings 24 hours before each exchange.

- Communication (Priority for planning)

Why it matters: Communication frequently escalates or breaks down before important information is shared.

First step: Move all non-emergency communication to a written, timestamped channel; adopt BIFF phrasing.

- Healthcare Coordination (Professional guidance recommended)

Why it matters: You explicitly asked for professional guidance on multiple items in this domain - please consider that request an important signal.

- Resource Coordination (Priority for planning)

Why it matters: Financial disagreements are delaying services or evaluations.

First step: Separate the money question from the child-need question; consider mediating a written expense agreement.

Communication toolkit

Because Domain 6 (Communication) is currently a Priority for planning or Professional guidance recommended, these tools are highlighted for you.

- Use BIFF messages

Brief, Informative, Friendly, Firm - keep messages to 4 sentences or fewer.

- Move to a written channel

Timestamped app or dedicated email thread for therapy, medication, and school updates.

- Weekly child-focused check-in 10 minutes, same day/time, with a fixed child-focused agenda.

- Delay before responding

Wait 4 hours before replying to charged messages. Draft, save, revise, then send.

- Facts, not feelings, in writing

Move emotional processing to a therapist or trusted friend.

Domain-by-domain detail

Domain 1: Understanding the Child

Rating: Existing strength

Your knowledge of your child's strengths, needs, triggers, and what helps them recover from stress.

Findings

- You understand your child's needs and what helps them recover from stress.

Recommendations

- Keep updating your understanding as new professional information arrives.

Domain 2: Educational Coordination

Rating: Developing area

School participation, accommodations, IEP/504 involvement, and information sharing about school.

Findings

- School coordination mostly works with occasional gaps.

Recommendations

- Ask the school to send communications to both parents; keep a shared school folder for the child.

Domain 3: Healthcare Coordination

Rating: Professional guidance recommended

Medical, mental-health, therapy, and medication management across both homes.

Findings

- You explicitly asked for professional guidance on multiple items in this domain - please consider that request an important signal.

Domain 4: Daily-Care Consistency

Rating: Developing area

Whether your home offers stable, predictable, developmentally-appropriate daily care.

Findings

- Most routines in your home are consistent, some drift.

Recommendations

- Pick one anchor routine (bedtime) and keep it identical for 30 days.

Domain 5: Transition Support

Rating: Priority for planning

Exchanges, transportation, and how well your child adjusts between homes.

Findings

- Transitions are a recurring source of stress.

Recommendations

- Move exchanges to a neutral or school-based location; add visual warnings 24 hours before each exchange.

Domain 6: Communication

Rating: Priority for planning

Timely, accurate, child-focused information sharing between homes.

Findings

- Communication frequently escalates or breaks down before important information is shared.

Recommendations

- Move all non-emergency communication to a written, timestamped channel; adopt BIFF phrasing.

Domain 7: Decision-Making

Rating: Developing area

How well parents make and resolve decisions about the child.

Findings

- Most decisions get made but the process is sometimes ad-hoc.

Recommendations

- Adopt a written decision-resolution ladder (share records ? professional input ? mediation).

Domain 8: Event Participation

Rating: Developing area

School events and extracurriculars - attendance, coordination, and child-first behaviour.

Findings

- Events mostly go smoothly.

Recommendations

- Keep a shared events calendar so surprises don't create friction.

Domain 9: Resource Coordination

Rating: Priority for planning

Financial, insurance, and service coordination that keeps care flowing.

Findings

- Financial disagreements are delaying services or evaluations.

Recommendations

- Separate the money question from the child-need question; consider mediating a written expense agreement.

Domain 10: Safety & Communication Safety

Rating: Existing strength

Screen for coercive control, harassment, protective-order concerns, and communication safety needs.

Findings

- No safety-sensitive concerns were flagged in your responses.

Recommendations

- Continue to protect a stable, child-focused communication channel.

Recommended next steps

- Move exchanges to a neutral or school-based location; add visual warnings 24 hours before each exchange.
- Move all non-emergency communication to a written, timestamped channel; adopt BIFF phrasing.
- Separate the money question from the child-need question; consider mediating a written expense agreement.

This report is an educational reflection tool from SA CoParents. It is not a diagnostic evaluation, custody evaluation, or legal advice. Findings are based on your self-assessment answers across the 10 special-needs co-parenting domains.